Greetings BIRDERS!

Thank you for joining us for the 28th annual celebration of spring and community during the Kachemak Bay Shorebird Festival. This year's Festival coincides with a full moon, some impressive tides, and World Migratory Bird Day–themed "Birds Connect Our World." We welcome birds and Festival participants, who come from near and far to enjoy this beautiful bay and wondrous habitat.

For a unique perspective on our connection to shorebirds, join us Thursday and Sunday for a film viewing and discussion with a Yup'ik culture bearer and Dr. Lili Nave (ADFG). The short film "Voices of the Pacific Flyway" will be featured as part of our Film Series: Shorebirds on Dynamic Boundaries. We will also highlight a brand new film, St. Matthew Island—The Wildest Isle, set in the Alaska Maritime National Wildlife Refuge, on Thursday and Friday for a "Movie Lunch Break."

Enjoy Saturday night's Keynote Addresses from Catherine Hamilton, who will speak on her Amur Falcon Expedition, and Eli Knapp, who will draw from his recent book, The Delightful Horror of Family Birding. You can also catch the Keynote Speakers on Sunday for their talks at Alaska Maritime NWR Visitor Center, or join one of our VIP Hot Spot Tours to bird alongside a local expert and a Keynote Speaker!

During the 2020 Festival, I invite you to take a moment to appreciate your connection to shorebirds and the natural bounty of the preserved lands and waters of Kachemak Bay.

Of course the Festival would not be possible without the bountiful support we receive from our local business sponsors who have made this home-grown Festival possible for 28 years and counting! A special thanks to all of the volunteers whose commitment and enthusiasm is responsible for the longevity of our Festival.

Mallory Primm, Festival Coordinator

What's New?

Kachemak Bay Birding, Wildlife & Natural History Tour 🎆

Wednesday, 8:30am–3pm | Harbor Ramp 6, Slip EE-21, M/V Pinbone (AVAILABLE W/Th/f)

Experience Kachemak Bay at its best! This full-day birding and wildlife tour, led by Seaman's Ecotour Adventures, explores the waters off the Homer Spit. Yukon Island, Sadie Cove and Eldridge Passage, Gull Island, Halibut Cove and Glacier Spit. See a wide variety of birds, several species of marine mammals, mountain goats, and learn the fascinating geology and natural history of Kachemak Bay. This roomy, stable boat has a heated pilot house, water, toilet, and a large rear deck that provides a great viewing platform for birders and photographers. Bring a lunch. Snacks and beverages provided. Limit 6. $175 ea.

Discovery Lab: Looney Loons 🙉 🛇

Wednesday, 3–5pm | Alaska Maritime NWR Visitor Center - Lab Classroom (AVAILABLE W/F)

Hands-on exploration of Loons! Learn about the loons in the Homer area. Discover their awesome adaptations, how they fly, what they eat, where to see them and more! The Yellow-billed loon is the feature bird of our Shorebird Festival 2020. Program is led by the Kachemak Bay Environmental Education Alliance. This event fulfills one of the Jr. Birder requirements. Open to all ages!

Family Birding Walk 🙉 🏈 Wednesday, 6–7pm KBNERR Office

Meet at the Kachemak Bay National Estuarine Research Reserve Office at 2181 Kachemak Drive for a fun family walk along Mud Bay with KBNERR Educator Dana Nelson. Bring warm outdoor gear as we will be outside most of the hour observing the shorebirds and investigating what they eat. 20 pairs of binoculars will be available to borrow and share! This event fulfills one of the Jr. Birder requirements. Limit 20.

Morning at the Marsh 🖚 🏈

Thursday, 6:30-8:30am | Beluga Lake Lower Platform (AVAILABLE Th/F/Sa/Su with various guides)

The birds of Beluga Lake and the surrounding boreal forest are attracted to this unique spot because of the fresh water source, good habitat, and restful, protected setting. Beluga Lake has a wide variety of wildlife including moose, raptors, waterfowl, shorebirds and more. Join our skilled guides Aaron Lang, Dale Chorman, and Carla Stanley to see what shows up or flies out. Scopes, local knowledge, and identification books will be available. Bring your binos and dress for the weather.

Cranes & Croissants 🏞 🏠

Thursday, 7–10am | Seaside Farm (AVAILABLE Th/F)

View the large flocks of migrating Sandhill Cranes that feed and rest on the Seaside Farm hayfields each spring. Birder Mossy Kilcher shares her knowledge of cranes, as well as other local birds' songs, calls, and habits during a bird identification walk. Coffee and continental breakfast included. This event is not accessible to individuals who are handicapped, physically-challenged or use a stroller. Road conditions are dependent on weather. Limit 30. $20 ea./$15 kids 12 & under.

Lake Clark National Park Bear & Bird Viewing 🅽

Thursday, 7:30am–2:30pm | Anchor River State Rec. Area, Beach Tractor Launch (AVAILABLE Th/F/Sa/Su)

Travel by boat to Lake Clark National Park on Cook Inlet's remote west coast to view coastal brown bears and migrating sea birds. Join bear guide Captain Mel Erickson, along with avid birder Debra Hess, who will be on board the "Gamefisher" to point out and identify dozens of different species of birds. You'll also see giant brown bears digging clams, walking the beach, or grazing on the sedge grasses in the salt marsh. The Beach Tractor Launch is at the end of Anchor Point Rd. This event is weather dependent. Limit 6. $300 ea.

Who Cares? Males or Females? 📣 🏈

Friday, 11–11:50am | Alaska Maritime NWR Visitor Center - Auditorium Shorebirds have an extraordinary diversity in how they mate and care for their young. Sometimes there is a sole female parent, or two parents, or even sequential and simultaneous polyandry with sole male parental care. In this talk, biologist David Lank uses examples to illuminate the ways in which environmental factors affect how birds of each sex provide care for their young, or seek additional reproductive opportunities.

Keynote Workshop: Birding by Ear 🌤 Friday, 12:30–2pm | Alaska Maritime NWR Visitor Center - Seminar Room

When people ask Keynote Speaker Eli Knapp how he finds time to go birding, his answer is: I never go birding. Why? Because he's always birding. Birding doesn't actually require seeing any birds at all. While we all love to see birds, hearing them—and discerning the songster—may not be as hard as you think. In this workshop we'll discuss simple tricks to get you tuned in to nature's chorus. By the end, you'll have ten new calls up your sleeve so that you can always be birding too. Limit 25. $20 ea.

Land Trust Van Tour 🖚 🧭

Friday, 12:30–2:30pm | Alaska Maritime NWR Visitor Center - meet in parking lot Kachemak Heritage Land Trust (KHLT), a Homer based non-profit organization, preserves critical fish, bird, and wildlife habitat, as well as recreational lands on the Kenai Peninsula for the future. Join us for a fun and informative guided van tour to a variety of treasured lands protected by KHLT. We'll visit our Calvin and Coyle Nature Trail, our Effler Trail, Nancy Hillstrand's recently protected 302 acre Let Nature Sing Wildlife Preserve in the Bridge Creek Watershed Protection District—the source of Homer's drinking water, and view irreplaceable landscapes in the Diamond Creek watershed. This tour offers fantastic photo opportunities as well as gaining knowledge of the importance of land trusts nationwide. Limit 22. Free, but please register.

Landscape Painting 🏞 📣

Friday, 12:30–3:30pm | Bishop's Beach Pavilion (AVAILABLE F/Sa)

Join artists Lorri Davis and David Pettibone for a plein air landscape painting workshop at the pavilion at Bishop's Beach. SCHANTZ SCHOLAR

Hannah Clipp

Hannah Clipp discovered a passion for birding and bird research six years ago during a summer spent studying dickcissels and other grassland songbirds on Konza Prairie in Kansas. Hannah recently completed her Master's degree in Wildlife Ecology at the University of Delaware, where she used weather surveillance radar data to study landbird migration and stopover ecology along the northern coast of the Gulf of Mexico. She is currently a PhD student in the West Virginia Cooperative Fish and Wildlife Research Unit at West Virginia University. Hannah's dissertation research focuses on the effects of climate change and landscape-scale forest management on avian communities, abundance, and nest success in the Appalachian Mountains.

Shorebird Natural History for Better Photos 🖚

Friday, 2:30–3:30pm | Alaska Maritime NWR Visitor Center - Seminar Room As a photographer and wildlife biologist specializing in migratory birds, David Shaw knows camera settings only go so far. By knowing something about the animals we are photographing we are better equipped to tell their stories through our images. Knowing habitat and migration patterns helps us find our quarry in the field. Understanding behavior helps us time our outings to maximize encountering exciting activity. In this classroom session, we'll discuss how shorebird natural history applies to image-making, and discuss what tools are available to research other species of interest to participants. Limit 30. $5 ea.

Schantz Scholar Hannah Clipp: A Look at Bird Migration with Weather Radar 🖇 🥑

Friday, 3–3:50pm | Alaska Maritime NWR Visitor Center - Auditorium Whether witnessing a storm of shorebirds descending upon Kachemak Bay, a fallout of landbirds along the coast of the Gulf of Mexico, or a river of raptors filling the skies of Veracruz, bird migration is one of the greatest spectacles in the world. In the US, that spectacle can be detected and measured on a nationwide scale by a network of weather surveillance radars. Schantz Scholar Hannah Clipp explains the use of weather surveillance radars in detecting birds and wildlife, and reviews their applications in avian research and management, with examples from her Master's thesis and other interesting studies.

SPRING SIGHTINGS

Kachemak Bay is home not only to the spring shorebird migration, but many other hard-to-find bird species as well. Early May brings the first warblers and swallows to Homer, along with Sandhill Cranes, Arctic and Aleutian Terns, Fork-tailed Stormpetrels and Puffins, both Tufted and Horned. Cormorants, Common Murres and Blacklegged Kittiwakes can be found near their nesting sites on Gull Island, and Common Eider, Pigeon Guillemot, Marbled and Kittlitz's Murrelets are visible on Kachemak Bay. Look for Eurasian Wigeons in Mud Bay and Beluga Lake. Find American Threetoed and Hairy Woodpeckers in the spruce wood areas. And, though not a shorebird, the always-sought-after Bald Eagle can be spotted frequently on shore and in the sky. Many of the 236 species of birds recorded for Kachemak Bay may be visible during Shorebird Festival weekend.

For a complete species list stop by the Alaska Maritime NWR Visitor Center or go online: kachemakbaybirders.org

WORLD WILDLIFE FUND

The World Wildlife Fund Salutes the Kachemak Bay Shorebird Festival

For two decades, World Wildlife Fund (WWF) has worked to protect America's most remarkable Arctic places and species. With WWF colleages in other Arctic nations we reach around the globe to conserve wildlife and ecosystems in a warming and more crowded world.

Today we're committed to minimizing threats posed by increasing trans-arctic shipping, preventing potentially devastating offshore oil and gas development, protecting Bristol Bay from large-scale mining, and to reducing human/polar bear conflict along Alaska's northern coast.

Since 2008 WWF's US Arctic Program has been a proud sponsor of the Kachemak Bay Shorebird Festival. We salute the Festival's organizers, volunteers, and US Fish and Wildlife Service staff who continue to help us all understand, appreciate, and protect our returning shorebirds and the irreplaceable places they need to complete their epic life stories.

Collaborating Conservation Outside of the Americas

Saturday, 3–3:50pm | Alaska Maritime NWR Visitor Center - Auditorium Many sensitive bird species that breed in the relatively undisturbed North American Arctic use flyways that take them out of the Western Hemisphere and into countries with vastly different management situations. Conservation issues vary by country and species, and if not addressed, limiting factors throughout a bird's annual migratory cycle can affect their survival. Many Alaskan bird species, especially shorebirds, are in decline and the need for coordinated action is urgent. Casey Burns of BLM will share opportunities to further conservation by increasing collaboration on migratory bird outreach, management, and research between flyways.

Audubon Alaska is a proud sponsor of the Kachemak Bay Shorebird Festival

From the icy, bountiful waters of the Arctic Ocean to the misty, salmon-rich rain forests of the Tongass National Forest, Audubon Alaska works to conserve Alaska's spectacular birds and wildlife – and their habitats – to ensure their place for future generations. We employ science and state-of-the-art mapping technology to drive our conservation priorities, with an emphasis on public lands and waters.

We work to end old-growth clearcut logging in the rare temperate rain forest of the Tongass National Forest in Southeast Alaska, prevent oil and gas drilling in the most sensitive ecological areas in the Arctic, and protect areas in Alaska with globally significant concentrations of birds.

Audubon Alaska is a state office of the National Audubon Society.

Keynote Address: The Delightful Horror of Beautiful Birds 🚈 🅉 Saturday, 7–8:30pm | Mariner Theatre, Homer High School

As his book title, The Delightful Horror of Family Birding, suggests, birding with the whole family isn't always a walk in the park. Especially when that park is in Tanzania or Ecuador. Join Eli Knapp for a look at what makes it all worthwhile: the sheer beauty of the birds! But why are they so dazzling? It's a complicated story involving some really smart folks you've heard of, a few you haven't, and—spoiler alert—a lot of sex. Come discover why your favorite species are simple narcissists, obsessed with their outfits, willing to do anything to impress. You'll also discover that while birds are busy impressing each other, they'll impress your whole family, too. $10 ea.

Keynote Talk with Eli Knapp: What's in a Name? 🜰 🏠

Sunday, 11am–12pm | Alaska Maritime NWR Visitor Center - Auditorium Learning bird names is an essential part of birding. Fortunately, many names are fun and easy to learn. Who can forget learning an Andean cock-of-the-rock or a vellow-rumped tinkerbird? Some, like vellow-bellied sapsucker, can even double as an insult. But others are neither fun nor memorable; they're hard to learn or may even hurt a bird's feelings. Would you want to be called a drab water-tyrant or a go-away-bird? VOLUNTEERS MAKF TT HAPPFN

In 1993 a group of Homer residents got together, dreaming up an event to educate the public about the importance of shorebirds and their habitat. These early volunteers set our Festival in motion 28 years ago and we are grateful for the community support we receive for the Festival today.

The Kachemak Bay Shorebird Festival would not be possible without the continued commitment and support of our wonderful volunteers. Over 80 dedicated folks come together to offer their time and expertise ensuring the success, longevity and spunk of this community Festival.

A big THANK YOU to each and every volunteer who has donated their time to manage our Viewing Stations, lead bird walks, count attendees, take tickets, carry scopes, edit this program, create 6x6 art pieces, offer their wisdom and everything in between.

Important Notes

All events require participants to register for the Festival. Some events require preregistration.

Dress in layers; bring mud boots, binoculars or a scope.

Please leave your furry friends at home.

All boat tours leave on time. Please be at the meeting location 15 minutes prior to departure time. Refunds will not be issued if you are late for your boat.

How to Register

Registration will open Monday, March 23 at 12pm

Register:

- 1. Online at kachemakshorebird.org
- 2. In-person Tuesdays and Thursdays 11am–4:30pm at Alaska Maritime NWR Visitor Center, 95 Sterling Hwy., Homer, AK 99603
- 3. By phone Tuesdays and Thursdays 11a .m.-4:30pm by calling (907) 226-4631. If we don't pick up, please leave a message. If you call outside these hours, your call will be returned during the next office hours.

Online registration is the quickest and easiest way to register and reserve event tickets.

Festival Registration

Festival registration permits entry into events listed with the "Included with Registration" icon. Registration allows participants to purchase/reserve tickets for events with limited space and/or an additional fee. Participants may be asked to show their 2020 Festival Registration Badge at each event.

The one-time Festival registration fee is $20. Participants may add up to four family members to their Festival registration for an additional $5 per person.

A one-time processing fee of $2 is added to each ticket order to cover credit card processing; this $2 fee covers the whole order and helps with the Festival's general operating and ticketing expenses. Thank you for your support in helping the Festival remain a self-sustaining event.

Pick up Festival Registration badges and event tickets at Alaska Maritime NWR Visitor Center, beginning May 6 at noon. Contact the Festival Coordinator at info@kachemakshorebird.org for further information or to make alternate arrangements.

Refund/Exchange Policy

In an effort to be fair to both our participants and event sponsors, our updated Refund and Exchange Policy is:

- No refunds will be given for registration or processing fees at any time.
- Refunds and exchanges on event ticket sales made before April 7, 4:30pm receive a full refund less a 10% refund fee.
- Refunds and exchanges on event tickets sales made between April 8 and April 22, 4:30pm receive a 50% refund.
- No refunds after April 22—two weeks prior to the Festival.
- If an event is canceled by the Festival due to high seas or other unforeseeable circumstances, participants will receive a full refund of event ticket costs.
- Event exchanges may be issued where space permits until Tuesday, May 5, 4:30pm.

surrounded by towering mountain peaks, stunning geologic features, and glaciers aboard our 30' aluminum boat the Gamefisher. We visit a rocky outcropping in the bay with nesting puffins, oystercatchers, pigeon guillemots, see shorebirds, falcons, waterfowl, all 3 species of scoters, loons, cormorants, and Common Eiders. Brown bears abound in the bay and can be seen along the shoreline and in a huge grassy meadow. Trip is available all 4 days of the shorebird festival but also by private charter before or after the event. Contact Mel Erickson - owner/captain to book a trip independent of the festival. A local birder will be aboard as crew.
